

Larry's Garden Expansion

Winter is here with its short days and snow. Despair not gardeners. The catalogues are coming with their visions of vegetables---old favorites and new, bigger and tastier varieties! Next growing season we will have more room to make these visions a reality.

Thanks once again to Larry's generosity and his love for our community, the garden is now 50% bigger. Larry said he donated the money simply because there were some people on the waiting list. (We have told the story of Larry's Garden in a previous issue and won't repeat it here.) However, those of us, who look forward to fresh tasting food and the joy of growing it, should be sure to repeat our "Thank you" to Larry.

What do we grow in the easy-to-tend raised beds? Tomatoes rule—yellow, orange, black, purple, pink, scarlet and, yes, even some red ones. Newer hybrids and heirlooms coexist peacefully in gardens even while some of us who grow them argue about which kind is better.

Many of us grow lettuces and spring mix, spinach, radish, beets, beans (bush and pole and green and red) eggplants, peppers and dill. You got it. We can grow anything we want.

There's a small section for the community to pick. That's where the herbs and flowers grow and, of course, where more tomatoes reside. There's even a cutting garden where you can pick flowers to grace your table while you eat all those tomatoes.

Come on out and tend your own plot, we have room. See Nancy Kostas.
